This journal and the individual contributions contained in it are protected under copyright, and the following terms and conditions apply to their use in addition to the terms of any Creative Commons or other user license that has been applied by the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver to an individual article:

Photocopying: Single photocopies of single articles may be made for personal use as allowed by national copyright laws. Permission is not required for photocopying of articles published under the CC BY license nor for photocopying for non-commercial purposes in accordance with any other user license applied by the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver. Permission of the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver is required for resale or distribution outside the subscribing institution or company. For any subscribed articles or articles published under a CC BY-NC-ND license, permission of the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver is required for all other derivative works, including compilations and translations.

Derivative Works: Users may reproduce tables of contents or prepare lists of articles including abstracts for internal circulation within their institutions or companies. Other than for articles published under the CC BY license, permission of the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver is required for resale or distribution outside the subscribing institution or company. For any subscribed articles or articles published under a CC BY-NC-ND license, permission of the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver is required for all other derivative works, including compilations and translations.

Storage or Usage: Except as outlined above or as set out in the relevant user license, no part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without prior written permission of the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver.

Permissions: For information on how to seek permission visit www.elsevier.com/permissions.

Author rights: Author(s) may have additional rights in their articles as set out in their agreement with the publisher and the European Association for the Study of the Liver (more information at <http://www.elsevier.com/authorsrights>).

Notice: Practitioners and researchers must always rely on their own experience and knowledge in evaluating and using any information, methods, compounds or experiments described herein. Because of rapid advances in the medical sciences, in particular, independent verification of diagnoses and drug dosages should be made. To the fullest extent of the law, no responsibility is assumed by the publisher or the European Association for the Study of the Liver for any injury and/or damage to persons or property as a matter of products liability, negligence or otherwise, or from any use or operation of any methods, products, instructions or ideas contained in the material herein.

Although all advertising material is expected to conform to ethical (medical) standards, inclusion in this publication does not constitute a guarantee or endorsement of the quality or value of such product or of the claims made of it by its manufacturer.

Important notice to authors: This journal is a peer reviewed, open access journal. As an open access journal with no subscription charges, a fee is payable by the author or research funder to cover the costs associated with publication. This ensures the articles will be immediately and permanently free to access by everyone.
